Biographical Information:

Me: So, Cmdr Salak, this is kind of near and dear to your heart because you've had a past incarnation in earth's Antiquity, isn't it?

CS: It's near and dear to my heart anyway. You personalize these things but we don't. We see you as our brethren and we see you suffering needlessly. So we've come to pull you out of this dilemma. All of the universe needs to be balanced and there is no balance on earth, only imbalance. So we're here to help you.

Me: Are you still working on Pine Gap DUMB in Australia or have you moved on?

CS: Yes, my ship is still here. We've overtaken the base, as you know, and are using it as a vantage point to access Antarctica. Eventually that will fall to our hands as well. We need to liberate this planet for the Light because it is a planet of Light. It was designated to be and has fallen into the wrong hands. The Pleiadians are your closest relatives and we see you as our kid brothers and sisters. LOL All humans are brethren. All of the Light are One.

Me: Yes, Unity thinking. You are all that way because you're more aware than we are. Lucky!

CS: (smiling) You'll get there. We are excited about what's going on now. The Liberation, the ascension, the higher energies finally coming to breathe life back into your planet and your people. It's wonderful to see it here again. After such darkness.

Me: In our initial conversation before we worked together at Pine Gap, you said, "Ah yes, you are curious of my origins. I'm Pleiadian and I have a career, as you call it, in the Galactic Federation. My specialty is light technology and am somewhat of a weapons technician.

Me: How did you make commander?

CS: In a battle against the dark with weaponry, a weapons specialist is a much sought after person for commandship."

So can you talk a bit more about your weapons knowledge or is that classified?

CS: For earthlings, that's classified! Your Ivo has not allowed you to see what he was doing with the technology he uses for assisting your planet, and the weapons he has only described rudimentarily to you. Not in detail.

We use Light energy, of course. We know how to manipulate it so that we can gain a certain affect. We do put beings in limbo, in stasis as you call it. We also can disintegrate ships and have fire power somewhat like your science fiction programs would imagine, however we choose to use the least destructive methods initially.

IMPLANT COMMUNICATIONS

Salak, continued....

I know your people think that we're blasting each other apart up here in space but such isn't the case. No. We use the least amount of destruction possible. That's not the case with your warriors as they try to ram our ships with their planes. These kamakaze techniques are suicidal but we won't allow your pilots to kill themselves that way. When we read their minds to see their intentions, we pull them out of their ships before they crash them. Our ships are never damaged as we can simply change our frequency to allow their planes to fly through us. They end up crashing on the surface.

Other times we allow them to fly through us, unharmed. At times we can change their timeline and they go happily along their way, not remembering what they came to do.

You have to understand that these pilots, the ones who are human anyway, are our children. Our cousins. Our brothers and sisters. And to have them turn on us like this hurts us but we understand they don't understand who we are and what they mean to us.

Me: Yes.

CS: We don't want to harm you. Not the people of earth. We don't want to harm anybody but we need to take control of the dark forces and whatever that means, we do it. We find it distasteful but we need to do this. We try to create as little harm as possible. Always.

Me: Yes. I can feel your feelings and I'm a bit overwhelmed right now.

CS: We try to restore your world, not destroy it.

Me: How do you feel about the Pleiadian Delta Forces aiding you in this battle now?

CS: Oh, well, more hands are always welcome. This is a huge undertaking. We sense your impatience but it would be best if you helped us. Focusing energy on the goals at hand, peace and love prevailing among your people, peace for the earth, the cessation of war and meeting with amicable ET races are good themes to focus your energy upon.

Me: Thank you. Thank you for this information, Commander. I appreciate it.

CS: You're most welcome. Again, I find your politeness awkward but I learned some from you when we spoke last year. LOL

Me: You'll get used to us. It was explained to me earlier: because we're not telepathic we have to explain our intentions and present ourselves with manners and using these pleasantries helps to make clear what our intentions are. Nice talking to you!

CS: (smiling) I must find a lexicon of human language and learn about politeness and manners.

Me: Yeah, I'm all about that. LOL Thanks! We'll speak again I hope. This was interesting.
